Dec. 26.—Eugene S. Kelly, of Cumberland township, lost a valuable cow recently by death.

Willow Grove School, of Cumberland township, spent Friday afternoon in having recitations and singing by the school, after which the teacher, John W. Black, treated the scholars to one pound of candy each. Clarence Creager presented a handsome rocking chair as a token of their love and friendship toward him as their teacher.

McCurdy's School, Cumberland township, spent Friday afternoon in having recitations and singing by the school, after which our popular young teacher, Geo. P. Black, treated the scholars to candy, one pound each. Miss Ruth Fissel, in a few kind words, presented the teacher with a very nice writing desk, for which he thanked the school.

On Saturday evening Mt. Joy church was filled to almost overflowing. The church was beautifully trimmed with evergreen. The speeches and music surpassed all previous occasions. The Infant School, of which the pastor and his sister are the teachers, presented them with a purse of money; $7.00 It was presented by Joseph Mills in a neat speech. The pastor, Rev. Minnick, was not forgotten; Miss Minnie Allison raised a purse of money through the congregation. It was presented by her father in a speech, and amounted to $12.30. The council, through the aid of the congregation, gave a purse of $20 25, also, an aged member presented 12 bushels of corn and 25 pounds of lard to the pastor. Miss Carrie Sharetts, the organist at Mt. Joy, was presented with $5 92 through the pastor, which was raised by F. S. Cromer. Each scholar received a package of candy, and a number of presents were made by teachers to their pupils and by pupils to their teachers.

Miss Ethel L. and Jesse B. Maring, of Carroll county, Md., are spending a few weeks with friends here. J. F. S.

From Cashtown.

Dec. 26.—There is a protracted meeting going on in the U. B. church near Hilltown, conducted by Rev. Ely, the pastor.

We have a great deal of ice here. The ice houses are all filled.

A few days ago Geo. Oyler, from near Mummasburg, came to the mountain for a load of wood, with smooth horses. He got as far as Willow Grove where he had to turn around and go home without his wood.

Jacob Sharrah sold a small tract of land near his house to James Shultz, near Willow Grove.

There were Christmas exercises at Flohr's church on Saturday evening, and at the Reformed church in Cashtown on Sunday evening.

On account of the Commissioners refusing to pay for scalps of wild animals, the foxes are reported to be very plenty, also wild cats, which are very destructive to game. Wild cats are known to have killed fawns when very young.

The report has it that there are quite a lot of weddings booked for this neighborhood in the near future.

Dec. 26.—On Thursday morning last, Joseph, the 12 year old son of Mrs. Agnes Phillips, of Germany township, started for school. When but a short distance from his home he slipped and fell, breaking his left arm at the elbow. The boy suffered very much from the fracture.

The churches of town observed Christmas by appropriate services. The Sunday schools of the Redeemer's Reformed, St. Paul's Lutheran, and St. John's Lutheran held very interesting services on Sunday evening, as also Christ's Reformed, below town. St. James', near town, held their services on Friday evening, and the M. E. Sunday School will hold their services this Monday evening. All the services were well attended.

Hon. Wm. McSherry is ill at this time, being confined to his bed. W.

SCHOOL REPORT.

The following is the correct report of Pleasant Dale School, of Menallen township, for the month ending Dec. 23, 1898: The whole number in attendance during month was, males 20, females 18, total 38; average attendance, males 17, females 15, total 32; percentage, males 92, females 80, total 86. Those in attendance every day during month were Nellie Taylor, Eva Krouse, Ruth Krouse, Nerva Rice, Ada Lupp, Willis and Oris Wagner, Lawrence Rice, Fred. and Bruce Taylor, Melvin Lowe, Cletis and Merl Culp. Harvey Krouse, Ellen and Naomi Wert, Rosie Weidner, Ada Culp, Otha Carey, Otha Rex, Edgar Lowe, Ernest and Roy Krouse, missed but one day.

The Evolution of a Nation.

There is nothing more remarkable, certainly in recent history, than the transformation which the American people have undergone in the last twelve months, according to President McKinley. Mr. McKinley is probably conscious of a great change in himself and is thoroughly convinced that the world has changed with him. He is no longer the same quiet, conservative American citizen that he was twelve months ago, when he addressed his first annual message to Congress. When he first entered upon the duties of the presidency he had called Congress together in extra session, but the subjects to which he then invited the attention of that body were of a domestic nature, mere "parochial" questions, as his Attorney General would call them now, such as the necessity of passing a new tariff bill, and the like. Even twelve months ago, with the exception of his views in favor of the annexation of Hawaii, he was pacific and conservative in his treatment of all subjects

Now the change which has taken place in the President's own temper and views is easily discernible and traceable. He has been listening to the martial rub-a-dub of the drum, the blare of trumpets, the booming of great cannon, and the buzzas of the multitude. He has traveled much, from Omaha to Atlanta, and his horizon has enlarged since he left Canton This is natural, since, as he himself tells us, our flag now waves in conquest and in triumph "over two hemispheres." Instead of visions of husking-bees and spelling-bees and quilting matches and such like scenes of his early Ohio home, he now dreams of distant empires, coral islands and waving groves of cocoanut palms, and of the day when in addition to the plain position of an American President, he shall be an Asiatic potentate, king of the Philippines and the Cannibal Islands, and "cousin" to the Emperor of Japan and the Empress of Cuba No wonder that Mr McKinley has greatly changed

But have we also as a nation greatly changed, and has the change in us been in the direction and to the extent that Mr. McKinley apparently thinks? A year ago we thought us a peaceful, sober people, governed and restrained by the laws of justice and mortality. A year ago, discussing the possible future of Cuba, he said: "Of the untried measures there remain only: Recognition of the insurgents as belligerents; recognition of the independence of Cuba; natural intervention to end the war by imposing a rational compromise between the contestants, and intervention in favor of one or the other party. I speak not of forcible annexation, for that cannot be thought of. That, by our code of morality would be criminal aggression." (Message of President McKinley to Congress, December 6, 1897.) Even as late as last April, when the President united with Congress in a formal declaration of war against Spain, "our code of morality" was not forgotten, but seemingly remained unchanged Although the war necessarily involved the invasion and occupation of Cuba by our military forces, the President and Congress again declared that this would be done with no idea of aggression or of territorial gain or advantage on our part, but that as soon as the independence of Cuba should be secured and peace and order should be established, our forces should be withdrawn. The idea that "where our flag was once hoisted it should never be hauled down" had not then spread from the yellow journals to the President of the United States.—Balto. Sun.

A Sword For Schley.

Rear-Admiral Schley was Thursday a week the recipient of a handsome and costly sword, scabbard and belt, presented to him in behalf of the people of Philadelphia and other cities in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, who contributed to a fund established for the purpose.

The ceremony took place in the Temple Baptist Church, and Col. A. K. McClure presided. Formal presentation was made by Miss Rena MacNeall, the fifteen-year-old sister of Private Harry MacNeall, of the marine corps, who distinguished himself during the battle of Santiago by clambering out on the muzzle of one of the cruiser Brooklyn's big guns during a heavy fire and removing a loaded shell which had become fastened in the breech.

A large and enthusiastic audience listened to speeches by Governor Hastings and Mayor Warwick, on behalf of the State and city. Governor-elect Stone also spoke in high terms of Admiral Schley and his achievements.

The Admiral, in accepting the gift, thanked the people, and said: "Let me hope with you that in God's Providence it may never be drawn without reason, but if it should ever be so willed that it must be drawn it will never be sheathed except in your greater honor."

The sword, scabbard and belt represent a cost of $4,200. The blade is of fine Damascus steel, appropriately engraved, and the hilt is elaborately decorated with diamonds and other precious stones.

McKinley Issues An Order For Immediate Aid.

The alarming destitution of two hundred thousand Cubans stirred President McKinley Wednesday a week to write with his own hand an order to the War Department directing the Quartermaster General, Commissary General and Surgeon General to furnish them with supplies, medicines and medical foods as rapidly as possible, beginning at Havana.

The President earnestly hopes says the dispatch, that the country, through the channels of private charity, will do what the Government cannot do in building hospitals in the Cuban cities and towns in place of the fever infected buildings bearing that name, and by sending in draft cattle and other necessaries of agriculture so that the impoverished people may resume work in the fields.

President McKinley gave up his afternoon drive to listen earnestly for an hour to the story of the actual situation of the more than thirty thousand destitute people in and around Havana alone, from the lips of R. S. Howland, editor of the Providence (R. I.) Journal, who has just returned from making a personal investigation.

"I believe Providence has put Cuba in our hands for redemption," said the President, and that it is our solemn duty to do everything in our power for that purpose."

Fairfield Items.

Dec. 26.—This is with Fairfield, as with nearly every other place, the week of weeks. Our pleasure is augmented very much with the numerous home comings of our friends, a few of which are the following: Robert Cunningham, of Lafayette College, Easton, Pa.; H. J. Musselman, of Gettysburg College; Robert Reindollar, of Harrisburg Business College; Russel Wilis and Chas. Shully, of Shippensburg Normal; Ellis Musselman, who is studying dentistry in Washington, D. C.; W. T. Heyser, also of Washington, D. C.; Horace Neely, of York; Miss Nan Sefton, of Knoxlyn, and many others too numerous to mention.

The Lutheran Sunday School had their usual Christmas exercises last Saturday, and as usual were excellent.

The Marsh Creek Sunday School had their treat Saturday afternoon and the Re... yesterday morning.

Carrier's Greeting.

THE NEW YEAR.

'TWAS near the time of midnight, that still hour
When silent dies the year that erst has been,
And from its grave a New Year rises swift,
Unheralded, to walk the self-same way,
To count with measured beat the same true time,
To round the same full circle—days, weeks, months,
Returning in its turn to pass away
And leave no trace it had ever been.

And as the hour trembled on the stroke
That soon should knell the death of one, and peal
At once the tidings of another's birth,
I wandered to the outer realm of Thought
Where souls in aimless fancy sometimes stray,
And half in dreaming, half in waking, touched
Upon the borderland of the To Be.
There, standing where the hands of Time are lost
In the vast reaches of the Infinite,
I saw a vision of the changing Years.
A veil into the Future seemed to lift,
The gateway of the Past stood open wide
Upon its threshold was the Angel Time.
And pausing in his flight as often seems
The setting sun to pause before he sinks,
The Angel met the Spirit of the Year
Returning from his journey to the Past.
An air of weary haste the Spirit wore,

And on he pressed with heavy, drooping wing,
As tho' he fain would rest in dreamless peace.
But ere he reached the portal of the Past,
The goal of his desire, the Angel said:
"Old Year, that now returnest from thy course
Aweary, soon to gladly case thyself
In the dim mist of unreturning Past,
Before oblivion shall shroud thee o'er
Oh, tell to Time the story of thy way,
What changes hast thou seen? What trophies won?
What gifts bestowed? What joys and sorrows met
Upon thy pathway winding thro' the world?"

The tired Spirit spoke, "Oh, Father Time
My path has led through many a changing scene,
Sometimes in easy walks by flowery rules,
Again with toilsome trend o'er mountains steep,
And weary has the journey proved to me.
To some my step brought peace, to others, pain.
Here, heavy hearts beat light at my approach,
And tear-dimmed eyes shone hopeful thro' their grief.
Then found I joy and mirth, and passing by
Left naught but woe and sorrow in my wake.
Here smile the happy ones my hand has joined.
There lie the graves new opened in my day.
The trophies that I bring are wounded hearts,
Vain dreams, and broken hopes, lost ideals.
The gifts I have bestowed are sighs and tears,
With but a gleam of gladness here and there,
My course has been one endless round of pain,
I weary of it all. Oh, let me rest!"
Scarce had the old year vanished in the Past
At the first stroke of the portentious hour,
When forth there sprang a radiant winged form,
Who had upon his brow the star of Hope.
It was the Spirit of the new-born year
Impatient for the pathway of his course
He checked his eager flight. The Angel spoke:

"Go forth, New Year, upon thy destined way,
Go, tread in measured time thy yearly beat,
Count out with watchful care each golden day,
And treasure well each precious passing hour.
Bear to the world a message of good cheer,
Wake hearts that sleep in silence of despair
To songs of joyful hope. Lift up the sad,
Make right all wrong, undo the old mistakes
Of former years. Pour balm of gentle peace
O'er hearts that mourn, and strew the new made grave
Of blasted hopes with leaves of memory.
Heal, by the magic touch of time, all grief.
Join hands of old-time foes in friendship's clasp.
Restore to home and peace all wandering souls.
Ope wide the door of hospitality.
Go tell the world a glad New Year is born!
New hope, new faith, new joy, new love, new life!"

The last stroke died in silence. I awoke
To meet the chill of January's dawn.
Yet in my heart the music of the words
Rang with an ever cheering song of peace.
Mine eyes had seen the coming of the Year,
My soul had caught its meaning and its hope.

THE CARRIER.

Little Marjory.

IT WAS THE COLDEST, ICIEST morning there had yet been in November. All over the brown fields shone the frost; the little ponds were skimmed over with a glittering film; in the gardens, the vines, long since dead, shone with the cold smile of coming winter; the dahlias in the yard of the farmhouse were black in the garments of their death, and the elm tree standing over them cracked in the wind.

But, withal, it was a bright, shining morning, and the smoke from the chimney lay in the air, soft and beautiful.

The sharp ring of an ax sounded regularly from the barnyard. It was wielded by a boy of thirteen perhaps, but small for that age. His jacket was buttoned closely round him, his cap pressed down upon his curly hair, and his cheeks glowed with the frosty air and the exercise.

He had been cutting wood an hour; meanwhile, in the house had arrived a little girl, brought there by the overseer of the poor. She stood timidly at one side of the great fire, the blaze warming her chilled limbs. She hugged an old cloak tightly about her, and replied in a low voice to the kind questions asked her by the farmer's wife, Mrs. Wyllis.

"Sit down on that stool," said the lady, "and put your feet up to the fire, while I bring you a bowl of bread and milk. Don't be bashful."

The child sat down, and directed her large black eyes to the fire, and in them was the sad, wistful expression of an unloved childhood; but mingled with that look was a self-controlled, self-reliant look which was unusual in so small a face. The face itself was dark and thin, and very plain; there appeared in it nothing to warrant a hope of beauty in after years, though the eyes would undoubtedly always be beautiful.

She took her milk in an eager way, though very daintily, and Mrs. Wyllis watched her with kindly glances.

"What is your name?" she asked. "I have forgotten, if Mr. Hinckly told me."

"Marjory St. James," was the reply.

"St. James. A nice-sounding name. Do you remember your mother or father?"

"I remember my father."

"Is he living?"

"I expect so."

This answer was given in a reserved tone that would have shown to a penetrating person she did not like to be questioned about him, but Mrs. Wyllis was not very observing.

"Have you seen him lately?"

"I should think it was two years."

"Then what makes you think he is living? Do you hear from him?"

"No."

"Was he a good man?"

The child clasped her hands, and exclaimed, passionately, "I don't believe anybody thinks he's a good man, but, oh, I love him!"

"If he was a good man I should think he would take care of you," said Mrs. Wyllis, very kindly, but also very obtusely.

"Seems to me," said a voice by the door behind Mrs. Wyllis, "if I was you, mother, I wouldn't ask her anything more about her father."

Marjory cast a look of thankfulness toward the speaker, who had come in unnoticed, and who was the boy who had been chopping wood.

"You needn't interrupt me, Fred," said his mother. "Of course, I want to know all I can about her parents. Did you ever go to school, Marjory?"

"No. But when I was at home, when I was very small, I used to have a teacher live there."

"Very small!" exclaimed Fred. "If you were smaller than you are now, you must have been a wonder."

"Be quiet, Fred," said his mother, severely; "she's as large as you now," which was very true.

Fred uttered an incredulous "Hm," and was silent.

"How old are you?"

"Thirteen."

"And how long have you been at the poorhouse?"

Mrs. Wyllis could not see how she inwardly winced at the last word.

"Ever since I was nine," was the answer.

"You know how to wash dishes, and sweep, and such things?"

"Yes."

"Well, I think you'll be a very good little girl; and I'll take you upstairs to the room you'll sleep in; then you may come down and help me."

And Mrs. Wyllis led her off, and immediately returned without her.

Fred sat by the fire, his cap thrown off, his chin on his hand. He remained thoughtful a few minutes, then, lifting his head, he said:

"What did she say her name was, mother?"

"Quite a romantic name — Marjory St James"

"Who do you suppose she is, anyway?"

Marjory, softly coming along the other room, whose door was half open, heard her name, and involuntarily paused.

"I am sure I don't know," Mrs. Wyllis replied. "I shall try to send her to school this winter; you must be kind to her, Fred, and treat her well."

"Treat her well! Of course, I shall. I declare, she's got about the homelest phiz I ever saw."

"Hush!" said his mother, looking with ill-concealed pride at the handsome face of the boy. "You shouldn't talk so."

The boy took up his cap and went back to his chopping, while the girl in the other room stood still for a moment with a flushed face and strangely bright eyes, then she came quietly into the kitchen and began washing dishes.

Fred had every inclination to be kind and on intimate terms with the newcomer. Kind he was, but it did not seem possible to be very intimate with the poorhouse girl. Fred decided in his own mind that she was the proudest piece he ever saw, and he was very much provoked with himself that he could not help liking her, for she certainly appeared to care very little for him.

It was true, at rare intervals, she seemed suddenly to thaw, and enter delightfully into his plans, to chat and laugh with him in a way that charmed him, and when next he came eagerly to her, he was almost sure to find a cold, reserved little thing, who had no time and apparently no wish to talk to him; then he would exclaim bitterly, "I believe you can't bear to have me speak to you, Marjory! Yesterday you were first-rate."

And Marjory would look in silence at him, and wonder within herself how she could have so forgotten her place, for all her lonely childhood that morbid pride had been growing in the sad heart, and she had so often repeated to herself that she could never expect much happiness, that somehow the world was against her—that bright world of which she had had a glimpse when, as she had said, she "was very little."

But one day, after she had been at the farm about two months, there happened an incident which effectually broke down the reserve that the child had striven to maintain.

It was a warm, thawy day in January. Fred had been out in the meadow half a mile below the house all the morning, when his mother experienced an imperative desire that he should return to cut up a pile of oven wood. Mrs. Wyllis directed Marjory to run down and call him, and bring him back directly.

Noon came, and no signs of the children. Mrs. Wyllis had dinner to get, and all the chores to do herself, and was getting very angry. The afternoon was wearing well on before she thought of being alarmed.

Meanwhile, Marjory had walked sedately along the path, had bounded through the woods that separated the house from the meadow; then, on the borders of the low-land, she had paused and looked about for Fred. She could not see him, but she saw the prints of his boots in the soft, watery snow, where he had bounded from hillock to hillock across the meadow, and into the cedar swamp beyond.

Marjory sighed as she looked down at her feet and knew she should get them drenched in snow-water. She raised her voice and shouted his name, but only a dull echo replied. She resigned herself to the task of finding him, and plunged through the morass, finding a sort of excitement in slopping through the poshy stuff.

At the border of the cedars she paused and looked dubiously into the dim wood. There was but little snow among the trees, but she saw the gleam of black pools of water. Strongly imaginative, she peopled the place with the goblins and fairies she had read of; but, instead of fearing them for herself, she pictured the horror of their having seized and held captive the boy for whom she was sent.

She plunged into the gloom, at first following Fred's footsteps, which she could faintly discern, but soon she lost them, and could not find them again, and went wandering on, thinking at every turn she should come upon him.

It seemed to her that she had walked days in the swamp, though it was no more than three hours, when suddenly she thought she heard a faint halloo, sounding half-smothered by these heavy hanging trees.

She rushed forward in the ... of the sound, her cloth... ing a... splas... sho...

"I'm coming! Which way?"

"Out here! Come quick!"

It was Fred's voice that she heard, and there was the sound of struggle and pain in it that somehow gave a tightened gasp to the girl's breath.

After a few minutes she broke through a tangle of horse-briars upon the banks of a little pond, in whose dark, stagnant waters she saw the boy for whom she had been sent, his head thrown back, his hands holding fast to a floating log of half-decayed wood, that barely kept him up.

Marjory stood for one moment recovering her breath, and trying to decide upon what to do. Fred looked in silence at her and instinct telling him that she would do the best thing. She clasped her hand and cried:

"I will get a long pole and reach it to you," and turned to find it when Fred said despondingly:

"You are not strong enough."

But the frail-looking arms were muscular, and seemed now endowed with superhuman strength. With much painful manœuvering on the part of both, Fred had grasped the pole and was dragged to the shore. Overcome by exhaustion, the boy sank down at her feet, and a few ill-concealed tears escaped his eyes as she took his head upon her arm, and he felt an almost uncontrollable desire to kiss her; but he refrained, feeling rather doubtful as to how she would take it, besides the fear of compromising his boyish dignity.

Sooner than he would have liked, she started up to go home, and he was fain to start with her. They plunged on briskly for half an hour, the boy's wet clothes steaming with his exercise, when suddenly, with a very blank face, he exclaimed, "Marjory, I don't know where we are! I am lost!"

It was true. Years after when Marjory was gone, Fred Wyllis recalled with an aching regret, despite its miseries, that long night's wandering in the wood, when he supported Marjory, who persisted in bravely denying that she was tired; and when in the gray wintry dawn, they came out upon a highway five miles from home, and plodded onward until a farmer took them up in his cart and carried them home to the distracted parents

Fred was sick a month after that, and with the fond tyranny of affection insisted upon Marjory's waiting upon him every minute, until his mother was half jealous of the little girl.

In the days of his convalescence, when he could sit by the kitchen fire, while Marjory knit or sewed, he first discovered what a voice of music his nurse had The boy, weakened by his long illness, would lean back in his chair, and while the wild melody of her songs filled the air, tears of exquisite delight would fill his sunken eyes and roll down his cheeks

It was upon one of these times, when Marjory was singing fragments of an Ave Maria she had picked up in some unknown way, that the door behind them opened softly, and the minister stood, with wondering face, listening with such intensity and surprise that he did not stir for a moment after the strain ceased. He was an amateur in music, and the result of that moment was the arrangement that Marjory should receive singing lessons from the lame German choir leader.

From that moment a new life had opened for the girl, the vague longings of her heart took form in the enthusiastic striving to grasp the best of her divine art.

As the weeks passed, Fred grew almost angry that all her devotion seemed offered to her one love. She had no time for him or anything save her music So the years began to glide, and the two children grew from the fancies of childhood to the deeper desires of a wider life.

It was the little garden of the farmhouse, but now over its gaudy, blooming flowers was pouring the golden light of a summer moon. Years had seemed to tell nothing upon the elm now whispering leafily in that warm air. Looking for the girl who came shivering in rags years ago at that house door, we saw her leaning over the swinging wooden gate, a flickering shade darkening the too dark face, for Marjory St. James can never be beautiful.

"Have you indeed decided to go?" has just asked the man by her side, bending a handsome blonde head down to his companion, and speaking with an intensity of tone that seemed unnecessary with such words.

"Irrevocably. I would not miss singing with such surroundings It has been my wish too long to forego it now."

She spoke with earnestness so sincere as in some way to irritate her companion.

"You speak that 'irrevocable' in a way that wounds me," said Fred. "As you say that I feel a foreboding that you will never return to us."

Marjory smiled bitterly, as one who plays with her unhappiness

"And in that case?" she said, interrogatively.

"In that case, Marjory, I shall be utterly miserable," said the young man, with sudden energy.

Marjory drew back with quick coldness, saying:

"I did not mean to provoke any such phrase."

"Oh, no, I am well aware of that," he said; "you repel me in every possible way." He was silent a moment, looking at her with eager, appropriating gaze, realizing with a pain he had not before dreamed of that this was his last evening with her for a long time, perhaps forever, for was she not going into the very midst of that fascinating excitement which attends a favorite cantratrice? and a favorite she could not fail of being, for already the fiat of the autocrats of music had been pronounced, and she had been engaged for the principal part in a grand musical festival in the neighboring city. And that, Fred Wyllis felt was but the vestibule to the highest place in the opera for which her talents peculiarly fitted her. It seemed to him that he was losing her forever; that he might, perhaps, have had more power a year ago.

"Be ice to me, if you will!" he cried passionately, seizing her hand and holding it to his fast-throbbing heart, but I will risk my happiness to-night in telling you that I love you—love you! Oh, it is an old feeling, but it moves me strangely in the telling of it!"

He paused with such a sound of emotion in his voice as told even more than his words.

Marjory stood very still. Could he feel the hand grow cold in his clasp? In that waving moonlight he saw her face very pale, he could not tell whether it was with pity or with the feeling that moved him so strongly.

She was silent so long ...

sprang up the ... the chamber ... glance at that face ... in that fiery glory, ... Fred Wyllis. She felt her ... ping upon her lips; there was now ... a pallid white heat on her face.

At the same moment Eustace exclaimed, "Good heavens! That is Fred Wyllis! It is sure death!"

Marjory did not reply. She could not have spoke had death been the penalty of silence.

An unbroken stillness fell upon the crowd. They waited until the man reappeared at the window with the child in his arms. He descended the ladder apparently with great difficulty. As he stepped upon the ground, the child was snatched from his arms by the father, and the girl watching in the carriage saw the brave figure reel and fall and the crowd bustle round him.

"Take me to him," she said to Eustace unconscious of the imperiousness of her tone.

"But the crowd," he began, "He will be cared for."

"Then I must go alone," making a movement to rise.

Eustace went with her. The people gave way before the woman, who seemed to come with authority, and the whisper ran amongst them:

"It is Marjory St. James!"

They had carried Fred Wyllis a little apart, and he was lying on a lounge, one of the many pieces of furniture scattered about.

Before him there appeared the face he had just seen queening it so royally. Tremulous, soft hands took his begrimed ones.

He murmured "Marjory," as in dreams he had done so many times, but now it was Marjory herself who answered him. She whispered his name in just such a tone as he had longed to hear.

"Only live," she said over his lips, her breath, for the first time since childhood, touching them in a caress. "Live when I tell you I love you, even as you would have me."

The intense earnestness of her tone called a flush to her face. He looked at her with all the fire of a gaze she remembered so well.

"Oh, I will live!" he cried, pressing that dearest face to his heart, but even as he spoke that heart throbbed its last, yielding to the strain which had been too great for mortal to bear.

A few moments later, in a cold still voice, Marjory requested that the body might be borne to her house, and she followed it in her carriage.

From that moment Eustace ... his hopes were always to be ... fillment.

They who hear the successful ... trice, and wonder what her history has been, cannot read in her face any evidence of the one dream of love she has known.

THE ROAD QUESTION.

There is no public institution more potent in social, political and commercial well being than the public highway. There is nothing which, by its absence, its presence, its goodness or its badness may so make or mar the community which uses it or would like to use it as the road by which its people may come together for the discussion of matters of public good or for that traffic in products which stamps man as the trading animal, says the Balto. Sun. Therefore, the man who makes two blades of grass grow where but one grew before has his counterpart as a public benefactor in the person who puts down a good, solid, horse-saving, wagon-economizing road-bed where at first only rocks and mud or dust and sand held full sway. Roads, like people, are prone to wear into ruts and many of the ruts in which the farmer's half-laden wagon jolts are primarily caused by the ruts into which the farmer ... his representative in legislative assemblages. The farmer has always wanted good roads, but he knows that the farmer has always had to pay for them, consequently he has generally looked upon any movement in their direction as a raid upon his own pocket. It required, then, some new force to join hands and voice with him both in the demand and in the suggestion of ways and means.

This new force has arrived in the bicycler. Branded under the banner of the League of American Wheelman the riders of the tireless tire have since their organization, in 1880, raised the cry of "good roads" and have kept it up with wondrous energy.

The Farmers' National Congress, which has just closed its session at Fort Worth, Tex., has passed strong resolutions in favor of the wheelman's way of getting good roads. It is known as the State aid system, and the adoption of these resolutions marks a signal success for the highway improvement committee of the L. A. W., and its chairman, Otto Dorner, who never suffered anything to chill his efforts to get next to the farmers with his project. For three successive years he has attended the Farmers' Congress of some 450 delegates, ...esenting nearly every State in the ..., and now they see his idea clearly ... like it. The State aid system, as ...own in the resolutions, recites that ...e cost of construction of first-class roads connecting farms with market towns is too considerable to be borne by farm property alone; that as the entire population is benefited directly and indirectly by good roads, all property ought to contribute through the medium of a State tax. The Higbee-Armstrong law, by which State aid has been introduced in New York, is popular. It provides for a division of the cost of road construction among the State, the county and the local township, and, it is said, many of the towns availing themselves of it will secure from outside sources four or five times the sum they raise themselves, while in the large cities, which will pay most of the funds, the ... not fall more heavily than one ...housand dollars of the assessed

A BALL... PLAN.

The Lebanon News, in a discussion of the proposition for a new ballot law, says: How to make the ballot smaller and how fully to protect the voter, so that he may vote for the candidate of his choice without fear of detection are two ends which must be kept in view in revising the present ballot law.

Nothing is easier, and here is the process:

A single column, with the names of candidates grouped under the title of the office.

No more rings; the voter to mark each candidate voted for. Secrecy is thus insured, for no one can tell by the time spent in the election booth whether a voter votes "straight" or "scratches."

No one to accompany a voter into the booth. If a man is not intelligent enough to mark his ticket he has no moral right to vote and should have no legal one.

Candidates to be named by convention or by nomination papers without restriction, except as to the number of names required on a paper. The name of a candidate would require but one line, not a column.

Upon the application of twenty voters of an election division the ballot box of that division to be re-opened. This would put an end to false returns

There is a ballot for you perfectly fair to everybody and secret as well.

AMERICAN capitalists are already looking over the situation in Cuba, with a view to building a railroad from one end of the island to the other. This project indicates that Cuban prosperity may come in on wheels.

Counting the Cost.

Senator Gorman Says the Expansion Policy Will Prove a Heavy Burden.

Anti-expansionists are piling up official estimates and figures to show that the proposed policy of imperialism will impose great burdens of taxation upon the people, says a Washington dispatch. Senator Gorman, who is prominent against expansion and also against a large increase in the standing army of the United States, will definitely employ the official figures to support his position.

As a member of the Senate committee on appropriations, now engaged in formulating the annual money bills, the Senator is able to obtain something like a fair estimate of what expansion is going to cost the United States. The cost of peace has not yet figured to any extent in the discussion growing out of the proposed policy of expansion. Senator Gorman suggests that enthusiasts seldom stop to count the cost of an experiment until it is too late.

Senator Gorman said that while it is probable the treaty will be ratified, the country will realize later on what an enormous sum of money we are about to pay for peace. To maintain an army of 100,000 men, it will cost, Senator Gorman says $120,000,000 a year, to say nothing of the incidental expenses attending the various forms of provisional government proposed. When the people settle down to a calm consideration of the immense debt now being piled up, and which we must continue to pile up to carry out the present policy of the government, Senator Gorman contends there will be a material change of sentiment on the subject of expansion.

There will probably be, he says, a stronger disposition to let the Filipinos work out their own salvation, without calling on the United States to pay all the bills.

Senator Hanna's Election.

The sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, which at the last session of Congress was charged with the duty of investigating and making a report upon the charges filed by the Ohio State Senate in the matter of the election of Senator Hanna to the United States Senate, will probably take up that subject at a meeting which will be held very soon after the reassembling of the Senate at the conclusion of the holiday recess.

It is understood that as the case now stands the committee places very little reliance in the charges before them. This impression is given by one of the members of the sub committee.

Mr. Hanna is not worried over the outcome, it is stated. He says the whole case is triumphed up by some of the Republicans of Ohio who are opposed to him, and he declares that the fullest investigation will show the utter falsity of all charges that have been made.

OLD GLORY OVER CUBA

Spanish Flag Pulled Down At Havana and Spanish Authority Ended.

Havana, January 1.—The sovereignty of Cuba passed from Spain to the United States at noon to-day. The form of the transfer was simple, consisting only of an exchange of speeches in the salon of the Palace, the hauling down of the Spanish flag and the raising in its stead of the flag of the United States on the flagstaff on the Palace roof. Salutes were fired from the heavy guns of the forts and warships before and after the change of flags. The raising of the Stars and Stripes was greeted with cheers by the people who covered the roofs of the buildings around the Palace and the plaza.

WAR COSTS A QUARTER BILLION.

Expensive Month After the Protocol Was Signed.

The cost of the Spanish war, including garrisons in the dependencies during the remainder of the present fiscal year, will probably fall within the limit of $250,000,000.

The signing of the protocol was far from putting an end to expenditures, and the net cost of the military and naval service, above the cost on a peace basis, was actually larger in September than in August.

Work on a Big Battleship.

Work on the battleship Ohio has been commenced at the Union Works.

The Ohio will be the largest ship ever built on the Pacific coast and one of the three largest ever built in the American navy. She will have a displacement of 12,500 tons and her dimensions will be as follows:

Length, 388 feet; breadth, 72 feet 3 inches; draught, 23 feet 9 inches.

Twenty feet longer than the Wisconsin, the new battleship will be forty feet longer than the Oregon. She will have a greater displacement than the Oregon by 1,000 tons and 2,000 tons more than the Oregon. The Ohio's contract speed is two knots faster than the Wisconsin and three knots faster than the Oregon.

State Certificates For Teachers.

To secure uniformity and attain efficiency among school teachers throughout the State, Representative W. W. Nesbitt, of Pittsburg, will introduce a bill at the coming session of the Legislature to change the present system of granting permanent certificates.

It is proposed by this bill to create a Teacher's Certificate Committee. To secure a certificate teachers must undergo an examination on questions submitted through a local board of five by the State Superintendent.

The latter will pass on the answers and award the State certificates to those entitled to them. Their certificates will not invalidate the present permanent cert... ...ll be recognized all over...

Lutheran Bodies in Conference.

First Meeting of the Kind Ever Held in This Country—Many States Represented.

The conference of Lutherans, comprising delegates from the General Council, General Synod and the United Synod of the South, the first meeting of the kind ever held in this country, opened last Tuesday morning in St. John's Lutheran Church, Philadelphia. The conference was a most important one, first, on account of its object, and, secondly, because the three bodies have a communicant membership of 600,000 persons, including 4,000 congregations. It was the outcome of a resolution taken by the General Council in 1895, in which the General Synod, the United Synod of the South and the United Norwegian Conference were invited to join in council in 1896. The former two accepted, but the latter refused on the ground that the issues involved did not affect them.

For various reasons the conference was postponed until last week. It is generally supposed that the object of the conference is the unification of the three bodies of Lutherans which have been divided for the past forty years. The real object, however, it is stated is to unite simply on two issues—that of foreign missions and home missions and to adopt ways and means of advancing them by a common interest.

There was no attempt whatever to introduce any new church organization; in fact, many of the delegates were opposed to such a measure for various reasons. Though they have various views on theological questions, all delegates unite on one point, namely, the adherence of the Augsburg Confession. The conference was largely attended by ministers from all parts of the country, including the most learned and noted prelates of the church.

Dr. E. J. Wolf, of Gettysburg, was one of the speakers on Tuesday.

After the sermon on Tuesday, Rev. H. E. Jacobs, the dean of Mt. Airy Seminary, who was the chairman of the day, explained the object of the conference as being to prepare the way for a better understanding and a more harmonious co-operation among Lutherans in the bodies represented.

Discussion of topics of vital interest marked the closing sessions of the Conference on Thursday. When Rev. H. F. Scheele, who presided, rapped for order, the attendance was the largest of the week.

The feature of the morning's session was the very general and animated discussion which followed the reading of several papers.

Rev. Dr. J. R Zimm, president of the Susquehanna University, Selinsgrove Pa., presented a paper on "The Lutheran Estimate of Ordination." Dr. Zimm took a neutral position. Afterward a lively discussion was precipitated by Rev. Dr. E. J. Wolf, of Gettysburg. Dr. Wolf's in brief, was that the church should call the minister, and that no man should be ordained who had not been called to some particular charge or church. Rev. Dr. A. Spaeth, of Mt. Airy Seminary, Germantown, agreed thoroughly with Dr. Wolf, and made an earnest argument in support of the position taken by him.

Rev. Dr Joseph A. Seiss, of Philadelphia, held that the views expressed by Drs. Wolf and Spaeth were too radical and unpractical, and argued in favor of the conclusions reached by the essayists. Dr. E. T. Horn, of Reading, supported Dr. Seiss, and spoke pointedly on that line. The discussion was closed by a few remarks by Drs. Haas and Dimm, in which they elaborated a little more fully the arguments advanced in their papers.

Two papers on "The Standard of Ministerial Education" were contributed by Rev. Dr. W. E. Parson and Rev. E. A. Kaehler. Both took the ground that the educational standard should not be lowered, but on the contrary, should be made even higher than it now is. They also gave their views as to certain matters upon which the ministerial student should receive special preparation, in order that when ordained he might not only be a credit to himself, but to his church.

The afternoon session was devoted to the discussion of "The Lutheran Church and Modern Religious Issues" and "The Problem of Co-operation."

EX-GOVERNOR COCHRAN DEAD.

Ex-Governor John P Cochran died at his home near Middletown, Del., last Tuesday morning. His health had been declining since he was injured by a fall on the ice about a month ago. Mr. Cochran was born in Abboquimimink hundred, on February 7, 1809, was of Scotch-Irish lineage and was reared on a farm. In early life he was a merchant, but returned to farming, and was probably the richest agriculturist in the State, having amassed a fortune of $200,000 or $300,000. He was elected Governor by the Democrats in 1874.

From Cashtown.

JAN. 2.—Cora, a 14-year-old daughter of Zachariah Kime, living near Hilltown, was seriously burned one day last week. Her father was away from home and the balance of the family were at school. She had been out and coming in very cold she stood with her back towards the stove. Her clothes in some manner caught fire and were literally burned off her body. Her back, arms and hands were burned into a crisp. Dr. Eiderice was called and later Dr. Reeder, of Biglerville, who is now attending her. Dr. Reeder says she may recover but her left hand may have to be amputated as the flesh is burned off to the bone on the inside. She is suffering wonderfully.

Henry Hassler lost a very a fine cow a few days ago with spinal disease. He had churned as much as 14 lbs. of butter a week from her.

When death comes to the door of a strong, rugged, healthy constitution he finds it closed. He is always sneaking around looking for openings through which he can invade happy homes and leave them forlorn and desolate. He looks for weak places and broken doors which can be easily battered down. When a man's vigor and energy begin to weaken and become uncertain, then the door to his vitality grows shaky and there is an opening for the grim visitor to enter.

It is commonly said that people die of this or that particular disease. The truth is they die of constitutional weakness. If more people realized this they would understand why the great "Golden Medical Discovery" invented by Dr R V Pierce of Buffalo, N Y, cures so many cases of lingering coughs, throat bronchial, and kindred affections of the air passages. It gives thorough abundant constitutional vitality. It gives the digestive and blood-making organs, where consumption usually begins, power to do their work completely so that no poisonous dregs can get into the circulation to fasten on the lungs and vital tissues.

"I have been troubled with bronchitis for several years," writes Mrs Orlin O'Hara, of Fergus Falls, Minn, (Box 154) "In the first place I had sore throat, doctored with different doctors and took various medicines, but got no lasting relief. We made up our minds to try the medicine advertised as Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. After I had taken one bottle we thought we could see a little change. We sent and got another bottle of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and also one of 'Favorite Prescription.' I took them alternately and in a few days I began to see that I was better for certain. I took eight bottles of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two of 'Favorite Prescription,' and, really, I have not felt as well in years. I sleep better than I have in twenty years."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a 1000 page illustrated book, will be sent free by the World's Dispensary Medical Association for 21 one-cent stamps, to pay the cost of mailing only, or a more substantial cloth-bound volume for 31 stamps.

LA GRIPPE SUCCESSFULLY TREATED.—"I have just recovered from the second attack of la grippe this year," says Mr. Jas. A. Jones, publisher of the Leader, Mexia, Texas. "In the latter case I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and I think with considerable success, only being in bed a little over two days against ten days for the former attack. The second attack I am satisfied would have been equally as bad as the first but for the use of this remedy as I had to go to bed about six hours after being 'struck' with it, while in the first case I was able to attend to business about two days before getting 'down.'" HOW TO PREVENT PNEUMONIA.—You are perhaps aware that pneumonia always results from a cold or from an attack of la grippe. During the epidemic of la grippe a few years ago when so many cases resulted in pneumonia, it was observed that the attack was never followed by that disease when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was used. It counteracts any tendency of a cold or la grippe to result in that dangerous disease. It is the best remedy in the world for bad colds and la grippe. Every bottle warranted. A business man is not the most patient creature in the world. He cannot wait to hear any long-drawn-out story of the cause of his ailment. He doesn't care two straws about a fine spun theory of how he should treat himself. He may be predisposed to scrofula, or consumption. "That," he will tell you "has nothing to do with the case." He wants to be well. If he can be cured, write out a prescription and send in your bill. So, here's the first part of the proposition.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a microbe hunter and killer. Many persons of scrofulous blood, encourage the breaking out of unsightly sores, to prevent the disease going to the lungs. There is no need of this state of dread and discomfort. Purify the blood. It can be done. "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure 98 per cent of all consumptive cases, also of all other lingering bronchial, throat and lung diseases.

Disagreeable Itching Spread All Over His Body—Sleep Disturbed—Hood's Sarsaparilla Drove Out the Poison and Cured.

"I have been poisoned every summer for years. Last summer the poison came out on me worse than ever before. I would frequently be awakened during the night by the itching. I would scratch myself, but instead of being relieved the trouble spread to different parts of my body. I tried various remedies which people recommended to me, but none of them ever helped me. I made up my mind the poison could not be cured until my blood was pure and then I decided to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. While taking the first bottle I felt relieved from the itching. I kept on taking the medicine and it has entirely cured me. I am now on my fourth bottle and I can sleep soundly at night." WILLIAM RAN, 3126 Westmont Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

NASAL catarrh quickly yields to treatment by Ely's Cream Balm, which is agreeably aromatic. It is received through the nostrils, cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. To test it, a trial size for 10 cents or the large, for 50 cents, is mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York. Druggists keep it. A remedy for nasal catarrh which is drying or exciting to the diseased membrane should not be used. Cream Balm is recognized as a specific.

JUDGE REEDER DEAD.

Superior Court Judge Howard J. Reeder, who for seven weeks has been lying in a critical condition at his home in Easton, died last Wednesday morning. His death was due to a complication of ailments following congestion of the lungs and dropsy, which undermined his constitution. Several times during his sickness he rallied when the doctors had about abandoned hope, but yesterday there was a decided change for the worse in his condition and his strength rapidly failed.

Hon. Dimner Beeber has been appointed to the vacancy in the Superior Court, caused by the death of Judge H. J. Reeder.

AN experienced art critic gives it as his opinion that there will be no handsomer piece of colored work issued this year than Hood's Sarsaparilla Calendar for 1899. It is not only useful, but artistic and beautiful, and up to date. The charming "American Girl" whose beautiful face appears with a delicately painted flag in the background, makes a pleasing feature which anyone will be pleased to have before him the whole of 1899. We suppose druggists will have this Calendar, or a copy may be obtained by sending 6 cents to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

WE begin on Wednesday the selling of bed comfortable materials, at much under value. For instance, 600 yds. full standard calico at 3 cts, 1,300 yds. of 8 ct. flannelette at 5 cts, 500 yds. silkaline at 6½ cts. Also other small lots.

About Catarrh.

It is caused by a cold or succession of colds, combined with impure blood. Its symptoms are pain in the head, discharge from the nose, ringing noises in the ears. It is cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla which purifies and enriches the blood, soothes and rebuilds the tissues and relieves all the disagreeable sensations.

HOOD'S PILLS cure all liver ills. Mailed for 25c by C. I. Hood & Co. Lowell, Mass.

Masonic Banquet.

On Tuesday evening Good Samaritan Lodge, No. 336, of this place, celebrated St. John's night in their annual reunion and banquet, in their hall, at Carlisle and Railroad streets. The attendance of the membership was large, with visitors from sister Lodges. After the usual business of the evening, all repaired to the hall on the second floor of the building where the banquet tables, beautifully decorated and laden with the substantials and delicacies of the season, were prepared by Mrs. Harry C. Lackner. The following was the menu:

OYSTERS
Raw on Half-shell Stewed Fried
Roast Turkey, Oyster Filling
Celery Cranberry Sauce
COLD DISHES
Roast Turkey Ham Tongue
SALADS
Chicken Potato Celery Lettuce
RELISHES
Cranberries Chili Sauce Worcester Sauce
Mustard Mixed Pickle
Tomato Catsup Pickled Beets Olives
Raw Cabbage
CAKES
Pound Cake FruitCake
Maccaroons Lady Fingers
Vienna Bread Finger Rolls Crackers
DESSERT
Pumpkin Pie Gypsy Pudding Swiss Cheese
FRUIT
Oranges Bananas Grapes
French Candies Mixed Nuts
Coffee Tea
Cigars

After all had done ample justice to the banquet, Toast Master, Bro Past Master Chas. S. Duncan presided most acceptably, when the following Brothers responded: "The Right Worshipful the Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons of Pa.," Bro. W. M., Geo. M. Walter; "Good Samaritan Lodge, Its Institution, Growth and Membership," Bro. P. M., W. T. Ziegler; "Our Lodge and Our Lodge Rooms," Bro. P. M., Daniel A. Skelly; "Auld Lang Syne," Bro. P. M., J. W. C. O'Neal; "Our Visiting Brethren," Bro. H. W. McKnight; "From Labor to Refreshment," Bro. S. W., J. L Kendlehart. After the above list of set toasts had been so eloquently disposed of, the following members of the order spoke impromptu: Capt. E. L. Schroder, of York, Rev. Geo. M. Glenn, of this place, and Rev. E. E Blint, of Littlestown. The banquet closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," after which most of the brothers returned to the Lodge Room, where an hour of social intercourse was enjoyed, all agreeing that the entertainment, both in the banquet hall and otherwise was one of the best in the history of Good Samaritan Lodge.

Church Wedding.

On Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock the Trinity Reformed church was the scene of a very pretty wedding, the contracting parties being Mr. Albert S. Cook, Principal of Reisterstown High School, and Miss Helen Earnshaw, of this place. Miss Eva Danner, the organist, played "Love's Old Sweet Song" while the audience was gathering.

Preceded by Messrs. Felix Norris, Henry Fletcher, Ed. J. Long and A. B. Strickler, the ushers, the bride entered the church on the arm of her uncle, Mr. H. C. Harris, to the strains of Mendlessohn's Wedding March. The groom entered from the chancel door with the best man, Mr. Elmer K. Cook. The bride and groom were met at the altar by Rev. Dr. T. J. Barkley, who performed the ceremony, using the ring service. The party left the church to the strains of Lohengrin's Bridal Chorus. After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home for the immediate friends of the family.

The couple left on the 4 35 p. m. train for New York and other points of interest.

Wedding Bells.

On Thursday evening, Dec. 22, at seven o'clock in the evening, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hartman, near Two Taverns, was the scene of a very pretty wedding. The contracting parties were their daughter, Miss Minnie A., and Mr. Ira S. Schwartz, eldest son of Samuel Schwartz, of Mountjoy township.

The ceremony was performed by the bride's pastor, Rev. F. S. Lindaman, of Littlestown, assisted by Rev. J. McDermott. The wedding march was very well rendered by Miss Florence Lindaman, of Littlestown. The bride entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. H. M. Hartman, Ph. G., of Baltimore, where they were met under an arch of evergreen by the groom and his brother, Mr. Ellis Schwartz, who was best man. The flower girls were Misses Margaret Schriver and Pauline Rudisill, nieces of the bride. The bride was handsomely attired in a steel colored dress, wearing white gloves and carrying bridal roses. The flower girls wore dresses of white organdie and carried pink roses and carnations. The groom and best man were the conventional black. The house was tastefully decorated in evergreen and cut flowers. After the ceremony refreshments of all kinds were served in abundance to about one hundred invited guests. The bride was the recipient of many handsome and valuable presents. A GUEST.

The Schoen Pressed Steel company has been awarded the contract for 1,000 steel cars for the Pittsburg, Bessemer and Lake Erie railroad by President James H. Reed, at a cost of about $700,000. Part of the large order will consist of steel gondolas for general merchandise, and the first ever attempted. It is believed that the construction of this new type of steel cars will open up a much wider field of operations for the Schoen company, and will multiply the demand for the Pittsburg product. As it is now, the Schoen company has orders enough to keep its big Allegheny plant busy until next May, and inquiries are constantly being made by various railroads.

Edgar Warren, son of George Warren, of New Oxford, who enlisted with the Second West Virginia regiment, has been discharged on account of kidney trouble contracted in the service.

Last night aweek the stable of D. L. Hesson's hotel, at Harney Md., was discovered to be on fire. The stable and ice-house, with Lincoln Witherow's stable, Dr. E. B Simpson's buggy, robes, medical cases and surgical instruments together with Mr. Hesson's horse was burned. There was some insurance on the property.

Judge Stewart, of Franklin county, has taken a hand in the tramp question by setting the rate of pay to the sheriff for boarding them at 13 cents a day. The rate of the present incumbent is 20 cents, and but a few years ago it was as high as 45 cents. There are about 100 vagrants in the jail, and more are being added daily, the magistrates and constables paying no attention to the resolution of the commissioners declaring that they would not pay fees for arresting and committing them.

The Board of Managers of the York County Agricultural Society unanimously adopted stringent regulations in regard to side shows and other privileges during the fair. These regulations cover privileges of a questionable nature, as well as those of a demoralizing tendency; nor will any such be sold or in any way tolerated upon the grounds.

Joseph Kendig, of York, left a fatigued horse with David Stoffer, of near East Berlin, about a month ago, saying it would be called for that week. Up to this time the horse, a seven-year-old animal, has not been claimed and several representatives of that well-known dealer, who passed by, said it was not theirs.

Dr. R. T. Mumma, veterinary surgeon, of Abbottstown street, Hanover, killed four cattle last Tuesday belonging to L. B. Rohrbaugh, of near Hobart, in West Manheim township, York county, which were afflicted with tuberculosis. The cattle were appraised by Dr. Mumma, who is the representative of the State Veterinary Board.

The new building of the Western Maryland Milk Company at Shippensburg, to take the place of the one there, recently destroyed by fire, is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy by next week. It will have new and improved machinery for separating the cream and milk and preparing it for shipment.

The trestle work through Shippensburg on the Western Maryland and Reading cut-off has been completed. The iron bridge, spanning Fayette Street, has been put up, and the ones crossing the "tail" race and Branch, as well as the one across Locust street, will be speedily erected. The abutments for the turnpike bridge are completed and the superstructure will soon be finished. Track laying from both ends has commenced, but the road will not be opened for traffic inside of a month.

'Squire Weaver committed West Heffelfinger, of Shippensburg, to jail, on the charge of felonious assault and battery, on oath of his wife. It is said he threatened to perforate her body with lead, ejected from a revolver.

Judge Edward M. Biddle, of the Cumberland County Courts, has two very interesting diplomas on the walls of his office in Carlisle. One was granted by Yale College to his great-grandfather, Elihu Spencer, on September 4, 1746, and the other to his father, Edward M. Biddle, by Princeton, on October 6, 1827. The valuable sheepskins are in a good state of preservation.

Monday afternoon aweek James McCurdy, a colored barber of Middletown, met with an accident which cost him his life. He attempted to board a freight train at Middletown to go to Marietta but missing his footing he was thrown under the wheels and both legs were torn off below the knees.

Shortly after Christmas services in St. Patrick's Pro-Cathedral, Shippensburg, Sabbath morning aweek, some of the decorations were set on fire by either an electric light wire or candles. The flames spread rapidly and by the time the fire department reached the church the altar and the organ had been destroyed and the frescoing greatly damaged, involving a loss of about $10,000, covered by insurance.

Near Rover, Haward county, Md., while grubbing, a man struck his mattock against what proved to be an iron safe. locked. Albert N. Dorsey opened the safe and found several articles of value, hidden there for many years. Several pieces of gold were found and three photographs taken in London, England, many years ago.

Select a day when the roofs are wet or covered with snow, and burn out your chimneys; but before you do it, examine them particularly in the attic and close to the roof, in order that a crack may not let the fire communicate to the interior of the house or roof. A large percentage of fires are caused every year by defective flues and chimneys.

Elegant Overcoats

500 Suits and Bargain Lots

—FOR—

Men, Boys and Children

Shrewd buyers will crowd our store all day long; they profit by it; so do we, despite the loss. We shall endeavor to make it pay you to come a great distance to help to unload our mammoth stock of Winter Clothing, etc.

Tailor Department.

All Winter Suiting and Overcoating to order at a big Sacrifice. Now is your chance to get goods at a big reduction.

GETTYSBURG, PA.

It Has Been a Great year.

WE FEEL LIKE indulging in congratulations on the business of 1898, now past.

The rush of the holiday season has not left us the time to clean up stock; that is, many good things have been neglected—not shown, not brought to the notice of our visitors, while lots of other things in a stock the size of ours, have naturally gotten to the stage of odds and ends. So on the date of the issue of this paper, we are busy going over the stock, getting out everything of the character spoken of, and re-marking them with closing-out prices. Every department has been touched with the Special Bargain Day price idea. We desire, however, to speak here particularly of Wraps and Dress Goods, because we feel sure the winter demand is far from filled.

This Week

Will be Devoted Mainly to the Selling of Wraps and Dress Goods. The Choosing Still Great. We cannot particularize now because at this writing we havn't done the re-marking, but we will say that the prices will be both tempting and saving.

THE LEADERS

G. W. Weaver & Son.

PROCLAMATION.

To the Coroner, Justices of the Peace and Constables in the Different Boroughs and Townships in the County of Adams—Greeting:

KNOW YE, that in pursuance of a precept to me directed under the hand and seal of the Honorable S. McC. SWOPE, President of the several Courts of Common Pleas, in the 51st Judicial District, consisting of the counties of Adams and Fulton, and by virtue of his office of the Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery, for the trial of Capital and other offenders therein, and in the General Court of Quarter Sessions of the Peace, and C. G. BEALES and T. S. BLOCHER, Esqs., Judges of the same county of Adams. You and each of you are hereby required to be and appear in your own proper persons with your Records, Recognizances, Examinations and other remembrances, before the Judges aforesaid, at Gettysburg, at a Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Jail Delivery and General Quarter Sessions of the Peace therein to be holden in the county of Adams aforesaid, on the 4th MONDAY of JAN. (being the 23d day,) at 10 o'clock, a. m., of said day, then and there to do those things to which your several offices appertain.

GIVEN under my hand at Gettysburg, on the 20th day of Dec., in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight. {SEAL}
FRANK M. MILLER,
Dec. 27, 1898. tc Sheriff.

Clothing Prices Down.

WE HAVE reduced the prices on the whole of our elegant stock of Men's, Boy's and Children's Clothing to the lowest possible notch. The season grows short and the goods must go. Now is the time to secure a stylish, well made, serviceable suit at a far lower price than such sterling values ever sold before. Here are a few samples: We have a few suits for men, the sizes are broken, that is, we have only one or two sizes of a kind, but in the lot the sizes [illegible] from 34 to 42, (so y[illegible] we are sure to have s[illegible] that will fit you, no [illegible] what size you wear.) Some of these suits we have sold for $8.00, the choice of the lot will go at $4.75. We also have a great many Overcoats left over for men — Blue and Black Beaver, some of them we have sold for $9.50; your choice of the lot for $4.75. Sizes 34, 35 and 36 only. In Youth's Suits we have reduced our $3.75 suits to $2.50, and our $5 00 and $6.00 suits to $3.75. Children's Reefers in the same proportions, call early for first choice.

Sale Begins
Tuesday, Jan. 3rd

Lieberman's
Popular Price Clothing House,

JOHNNY BUTTER-MILK'S LETTER.

Dear Cousin Ben —

Sis Belle an her young man don't speak to one nuther any more I ll tel you how it is You know them fatal cards "Huntin a minister" what sis Belle and her young man found pinned on their selves one day when they was out walkin, an which they was foolish enuff to ackuse me of doing?

I call them fatal cause they did finally get me into a scrap with my pa's cane

Pa happ ned to have that obnockshus cane in his hand durin that unhappy scrap I wonder why canes was invented They're a yoseless thing anyway I m not suprised that Abel's brother was named after one of them aggressive sticks

Well as the dear good man ma's preacher says — I m dygressin " Well Sis Belle s young man Mr Shaver I mean said That little retch your brother ought to be cowhided with a nich of his life " He just happened to make that sass thkat remark azackly as pa s cane and I s atted on our painful duet

This cane was an nawful heavy thing an I think Sis Belle heard my vocal cords d ... in music suitable for the okkasion Sis B lle gets awful mad at me but she is soft hearted, and never did like the sound I make when pa an his cane gets too interestin, so when Mr Shaver said that remark to Sis Belle, she told him that was her darlin little brother he was talking of so heartlessly She said that cause I heard her tellin it to ma that night when they thought I was asleep I think I'll have to give Sis Belle's young man my attention some day

Well he an Belle got so mad at one nuther that they don't speak any more Simple ain't it? Now ef they'd a bin two boys they could a just up fist an had it out I don't think girls is such a terrible lot of good any way

I seen a new cat at our next door neighbors, its a buty too, one of them Persian cats an big I wonder if they love it like it was a great pet I like cats especially when they dont belong to our house Our own cats aint so handy, cause somehow the whole family seem to know in a minit where our cat is or where it ought to be I dont see why they are always watchin our cat Who's goin to hurt it I d like to know

Well dear Ben since inditen the above, three days have gone by "on the wings of the dove" no not that neither, they went sloweren that, awful slow, an I'm just beginnin to see out of my other eye

You see it was this way I couldn't help thinkin of that buty of a cat of our next door neighbors It haunted my mind and made my fingers kind of tingle, especially whenever I'd see or hear a dog Queer wasn't it? My Uncle he's a doctor You know Uncle Jim?

Well Uncle Jim had some sperryments with a ginny pig an poison ivy, for to see how to cure people of the poison or something, so when I noticed the great an unusual buty of our neighbor's new cat, syentifick aspyrations began to soar in my breast I would be my uncle's rival to fame

I solilyquized if poison-ivy an ginny-pigs went together, what was the matter with poke berries and cats joinin hands? I gathered up poke berries, got the carving-knife an ground and ground them to the mushiest mush, then I swiped that cat so as I could vacksinate her

She was a very gentle cat an I had no trouble at all in getting her into the library where sollytude rained The way that cat examined everything in that room was something to see, she looked at them as though like she saw things spiritually as the dear good man Ma's preacher is wont to say That cat looked so serene and contented for anything I ... peaceful sight to see her

I jabbed the knife into the red mush and proceeded to vacksinnate pussy

You ... cats ain t got a ... feet hid away for okkasions When I carried her into the house she was ... velvet feet an all I don't know what she was not ... she wazzent when I ... to vacksinnate her She ... think anything but I know she had moren 20 ... like needles, with some extra ... to k ck with

... tell you what she did only I know I had my choice Pa's slipper would be a puddin aside that cat I must have been a startlin sight to my Ma when she hurried in to see what the strange turmoil was The way that red mush was scattered over me and the room was a sight to behold, an the books will carry the marks of the battle to their dyin days There are some red spots on the ceiling

Ma fainted an has to get a new dress She dident pick out a place to fall before she fainted, an they say poke berries makes a everlastin stain

To day was the first time I could look on the scene of my syentifick failure, cause I was blind for two days

What deceitful things cats are There was that peaceful, velvety, serene cat lookin as gentle as "the dear good man" Ma s preacher an in five minutes she made our reposeful library look like the Rough Ryders had lambasted a lot of Spanyards right there I will tell you some more news a nuther time I'm too sad now Yours in affylckshun,

Scrofula, a Vile Inheritance.

Scrofula is the most obstinate of blood troubles, and is often the result of an inherited taint in the blood S S S is the only remedy which goes deep enough to reach Scrofula; it forces out every trace of the disease, and cures the worst cases.

My son Charlie was afflicted from infancy with Scrofula and he suffered so that it was impossible to dress him for three years His head and body were a mass of sores and his eyesight also became affected No treatment was spared that we thought would relieve him but he grew worse until his condition was indeed pitiable I had almost despaired of his ever being cured when by the advice of a friend we gave him S S S (Swift s Specific) A decided improvement was the result and after he had taken a dozen bottles no one who knew of his former dreadful condition would have recognized him All the sores on his body have healed his skin is perfectly clear and smooth, and he has been restored to perfect health

"WHERE DIRT GATHERS, WASTE RULES."

GREAT SAVING RESULTS FROM THE USE OF

SAPOLIO

CREAM AND SUGAR.

At a certain news stand not far from Chestnut street, there is a picture of Miss Mary Mannering cut from a magazine, mounted and framed The proprietor was talking to his best customer when a dilapidated remnant of humanity shuffled up with a "hardluck story" The customer ignored him, but the news stand man gave him a nickel.

"I can t forget I was a tramp myself once," he remarked apologetically

"You!"

"Yes—I—and but for her"—glancing adoringly at the framed picture, "I'd be one now "

"What had Mary Mannering to do with it?" inquired the customer incredulously

"Nothing," replied the other It was not she—but one who looks just like her I had been long since disowned by my family One evening I passed a house on the road between Melrose and Philadelphia I had been repulsed all day—was hungry—desperate The house was some distance from the road, and lonely I heard voices on the piazza and crouched to avoid observation

Good bye Gis!" I heard a man say 'We'll get back as early as we can You re not afraid to be alone are you?'

No, indeed," replied a girl Then a man and woman disappeared in the direction of the station Then I went to the door and knocked

It was soon opened and a tall girl with a graceful figure and great green eyes stood before me

This was my chance to intimidate

'I m starving "

'Poor fellow!' she exclaimed compassionately Your shoes are so muddy would you mind coming round to the back door?'

I went I was ushered into the kitchen I was given a good meal I was waited upon as if I was paying for it Then at the end she brought me a cup of coffee and standing beside me daintily holding the sugar tongs in one hand and a little pitcher in the other she asked smiling

'Cream and sugar?"

She probably does not know to this day why I blubbered like a fool nor how since then I have endeavored to be what she treated me as—a gentleman "

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES

Two little girls were gazing at the stars one evening 'I wonder what they are?" said one 'Oh," replied the other, 'I guess they are good little night lamps that have died and gone to heaven "

A visitor who was trotting 4 year old Freddie upon his knee remarked to the little fellow's mother "Do you know there is something in this young man I like?" 'Say," exclaimed the youngster, "who told you that I swallowed a penny?"

Ethel, aged 5, was learning to sew, and one day after vainly trying to make the preliminary preparation with a needle and thread, she asked 'Mamma, don't they call the hole in the needle an eye?' 'Yes, dear,' was the reply 'Well," continued the little miss, 'I ll bet this old needle's cross eyed "

Little 5 year old Willie had a very bad memory and his mother had a hard time teaching him to say 'if you please' when he wanted anything The other evening at dinner he said 'Mamma, hand me the butter " If you what Willie?' she cried 'Why, if you can reach it " was the reply

Little 4 year old Harry was not feeling well and his father suggested that he might be taking the chicken pox, then prevalent Harry went to bed laughing at the idea, but early next morning he came downstairs looking very serious, and said "You are right, papa, it is the chicken pox, I found a feather in the bed

"ALL BETS ARE OFF"

Mike Neacy is a Macon street butcher who by good butchering has obtained quite a competence By good wits he has achieved quite a prominent position in politics and is one of Mayor Rose s advisers, and his combination of good butchering, good looks, good wits and good fellowship has made him a very popular member of the Bon Ami Club which despite its French name, is an Irish organization and of course, being Irish a political organization as well though the professed tendencies of the club are purely social

The telephone rang in Mr Neacy s butcher shop and a sweet voice asked Mr Neacy

Have you this morning a nice, fat juicy steak?"

You bet your socks we have," answered Mr Neacy heartily

'Sir!' came a voice back through the telephone in such a coldly indignant tone that Neacy thought the refrigerator door was open Do you know whom you are talking to?'

"Bridget "

"No, sir I am Mrs Vanzant "

"Then all bets are off "—Chicago Chronicle

SHE WAS WAITING FOR HIM

"Here he comes," she muttered, and grasped the poker tighter

The time was 3 a m , and her face wore an expression of grim determination as she stood at the head of the stairs She was lightly clad, but the cold draughts struck her without a chill, for inwardly she was seething with angry passion

"The fool!" she hissed through her thin, compressed lips 'Does he think he can get in this house at this time of night? Does he fancy he can pursue his nefarious practices on me? I'll show him!" she bitterly repeated

The noise grew nearer, and the woman's face grew more rigid as the poker slowly reared in the darkness Suddenly it descended with a horrible crunch and a man fell upon the landing In an instant the infuriated woman was upon him, binding his hands and legs securely before consciousness could return The next morning the plucky new woman appeared in court against him, and the unlucky burglar received three years —Chicago Tribune

NOT UNLIKELY

This is a lawyer's story of his first trial, in which a farmer accused his neighbor of stealing his ducks The lawyer was employed by the accused to convince the court that such was not the case The plaintiff was positive that his neighbor was guilty of the offense charged because he had seen his ducks in the defendant's yard

"How do you know they were your ducks?" asked the lawyer

'I should know my ducks anywhere," replied the farmer, giving a description of their various peculiarities whereby he could distinguish them

"Why," said the lawyer, 'those ducks cannot be of such rare breed I have seen some just like them in my own yard "

"That's not at all unlikely," admitted the farmer, "for they are not the only ducks I have had stolen lately "

"You certainly have got the spirit of Winter in this Christmas story," said the editor "You must have written it in a cold storage warehouse, if, as you say, you did it in August "

"No," replied the Scribe, 'I wrote that after having proposed marriage to a Boston girl "—Harper's B...

WHAT IS JEALOUSY.

SOMEONE DECLARES IT IS CONCENTRATED SELFISHNESS—WHAT CHILDREN SHOULD BE TAUGHT REGARDING IT

People who are given to indulging in this most trying of fancies are very fond of declaring that jealousy is a necessary accompaniment of love Indeed, certain writers have asserted that true love without jealousy is impossible

It would be a very good idea for some of those people to look the subject carefully over and see what jealousy really is and what forms it takes

As a rule jealously is concentrated selfishness It is never satisfied to allow any one else any rights, privileges or pleasures connected with the beloved object A complete monopoly of the individual, the thoughts, sentiments and feelings, is the only endurable situation There are people who are jealous even of the attention that the loved one bestows on an animal, a plant or a book One man wrung a canary's neck because his lady love left him to play with it. Other lovers have done equally cruel and foolish things

Jealously, carefully analyzed, seems to be the utmost degree of selfishness, united with an arrogant determination to monopolize the body and soul of the object of its devotion It is cruel capricious, utterly heartless and full of bitterness and strife A jealous person may be not very far removed from an angel when everything goes smoothly, but develop a capacity for fiendishness that is scarcely produced by any other sentiment known to humanity Unselfish and kind-hearted people rarely give way to jealousy When they do it is a most disastrous outbreak, and seems to curdle the very blood in their veins

Children should be taught from their earliest years the blighting and deadly effects of jealousy There is nothing worse in a household, nothing more demoralizing Misfortune, sorrow, trouble of all kinds may be borne with a tolerable amount of resignation, but when jealousy presents itself in the midst of a family peace, happiness and good will take unto themselves wings and fly away

THE TOURIST AND THE COWBOY

A cowboy who was galloping over the prairie in search of lost stock came upon a tourist from Philadelphia, who was sitting down to rest

You seem to have been taking a walk " observed the man of the broncho as he drew rein

Only a few hundred miles," was the careless reply

'But where do you wish to go?'

Nowhere in particular Most any old place will suit me I had heard that your prairies out here were so large that one could get lost in traversing them, and I came out to see for myself "

Well, you found it was true?

Of that I am not yet satisfied So far as I can figure I am all right, but it is the prairie which has lost itself "

Perhaps you expect me to offer you my horse?"

Not at all While I have never been in the saddle, one glance at your short legs proves that you are no walker Things would be made no better by an exchange "

Well, look out for Indians, " said the cowboy as he was ready to ride away

If a band happens to come across you off will come your scalp "

I had thought of that, " replied the tourist as he removed his hat and exhibited his bald head, "and if you are provided with a supply of hair restorative and will sell at a reasonable price I will—"

'You'll do, old man!" chuckled the cowboy

'Thanks but as there is no one else I ll have to Sorry if I have caused you to miss you car, but there are others, you know "

NO CENTURY BEGINS ON SUNDAY

There are some curious facts about our calander No century can begin on Wednesday Friday on Sunday The same calander can be used every twenty years

October always begins on the same day of the week as January, April as July, September as December February, March and November begin on the same days May June and August always begin on different days from each other and every other month in the year The first and last days of the year are always the same

These rules do not apply to leap year, when comparison is made between days before and after February 29

UNMASKED BY SCIENCE

The lady professor suddenly reached forward and deftly picked a long, light hair from her husband s coat

"Wretch," she cried whose is this?"

'One of your own " he answered stoutly

'We will see ' she haughtily observed, and speedily vanished through a door labeled 'Labratory " For an hour or more the sound of clinking tubes and glasses were faintly heard through the heavy partition

Then the door suddenly opened and the lady professor stood on the threshold

Her face was blazing

'Villain," she cried, 'it was bleached!"

But he had gone —Cleveland Plain Dealer

DURING the hearing of a case in court the other day a funny answer by the prisoner convulsed the court in laughter

"Silence in the court!" thundered the magistrate "The next person who laughs will be instantly ejected!"

At this the prisoner burst out laughing

"Stop that foolish noise!" said the magistrate

"Well I do call that hard!" said the prisoner 'You said you would eject the next person who laughed, and I am only waiting to see you carry out your promise "

SOME children were trespassing in a field, and quite happily gathering flowers. Presently a man came up to them, saying angrily

'Now, then what business have you to be in here? Didn't you see the notice at the gate?"

'Oh, yes please, sir," answered one little girl, 'we saw a notice, but it had 'private' on it, so we didn't like to look "

"I WENT down on my knees when I proposed to her "

"How did she take it?"

"She asked me not to move until she got her kodak "—Chicago Record

HE was about to ask her father the essential question

"I think " he said, ' that you will bear me out when I say—"

"No!" cried the irate papa, "but I'll kick you out if you say any more!"

It was enough.—Puck

Treacherous Catarrh.

Those people who know they have catarrh form but a small minority of the thousands who are really in its grasp It is the most insidious disease known. In its early stages its symptoms do not differ from those of a persistent cold and the sufferer nurses the vain hope that time and care will cure him Sooner or later his eyes are opened to the fact that he has chronic catarrh—that a most distressing loathsome and dangerous disease has claimed him for its own, and that consumption may make its dread appearance at any moment.

DR. AGNEW'S CATARRHAL POWDER

is the only sure remedy It will positively work a permanent cure of either incipient or chronic catarrh. Don t delay until you are a source of annoyance to all your friends. Stop the ravages of the disease at once and be your old healthy self again. The first puff will relieve you in ten minutes
